Interest when she returns to the metropolis crowned with provincial bays. As Sir Lucius O'Trigger says, "It's a mighty pretty quarrel as it stands," and we desire to call attention to It rather than to meddle with it.

THE TREASURY DEPARTMENT AND TRADE TABLES. We understand that Mr. Cobb excuses his refusal to communicate to the press the statistics of the trade of the country, by saying that he has had applications from so many editors that he has been obliged to refuse all. Without dwelling on the logic of this excuse, we may remark that if, as the Secretary says, he did resolve to deny his figures to all the papers, it was rather inconsistent in him to give them at last to one of the most obscure and least read papers in the country—the Washington Constitution. But Mr. Cobb's dealings with the press are peculiarly eccentric-Those journals are generally surest of his fawors which are remarkable for their hostility to the administration and their abuse of its members. When he does resolve to part with one of his cherished tables of figures, he is sure to give it to a paper which has made itself conspicuous by hostility to Mr. Bachanan. But, all this apart, Mr. Cobb has no right whatever to withhold from the public for a single hour the trade statistics which come into his hands as Secretary of the Treasury. The commerce and navigation tables are compiled at great expense, solely and exclusively for the guidance of the mercantile community. It is in order that importers may know how much to import and where to import from, what to export and where to export to, that these tables are made up; and it is only by studying them closely that intelligent commercial operations can be carried on. It is evident that, in regard to knowledge of this kind, priority is invaluable, and that if two merchants undertake to do business in rivalry, the one with, the other without, a knowledge of the general commercial statistics of the country, the former will be the most successful. How can we tell to whom these tables of 1858-9, which Mr. Cot.b refuses to make public, may not have been privately communicated?

It is the right of the public to know, at the earliest possible moment, all that can be ascertained about the condition and progress of trade; and we are greatly surprised that Mr. Cobb should have so little appreciation of his duty as to keep the annual tables locked up in his desk when the whole commerce of the country is anxiously looking out for them.

THE SPOILSMEN OF TAMMANY HALL AT WASH-INGTON.-When the telegraph announced that Theodore Sedgwick, the United States District Attorney of New York, had died in Massachusetts, the spoilsmen of Tammany Hall put their heads together, and sent a deputation to Wash-Ington to claim the office for anti-slavery Tilden, their defeated candidate for Corporation Counsel, even before the late holder was buried. Such is the indecent haste of these greedy political vultures, and such is their brazen impudence to claim any such office after their shameful defeat, which proves them to be in a small minority of the democratic party in this city. The recent contest also proves that they are abolitionized, and that they fraternized with black republicans to defeat a national democrat who held aloft the flag of the Union. That the old harlot should look for an office from the President at this particular moment is only another evidence that she is lost to all shame. Already all the federal offices in the city are in possession of the Tammany Hall organization. Instead of giving them any more, we hope the government at Washington has by this time determined to take from them every office they now hold. This would be the wisest thing the administration ever did in reference to this city. Tammany Hall has been a source of weakness, a very curse to the government.

whom seemed to take a lively interest in the doings, actions and recommendations of the Committee.

Mr. Benjamin Ray, a delegate from the city of New York, desired the room to be cleared of all persons no members of the State Committee. His purpose seemed mostly to be to exclude reporters and editors of papers, as there were some half dozen present. The genlleman contended that their proceedings had heretofore ileman contended that their proceedings had heretofore been mutilated, their purposes perverted and their trans-actions misstated; and he was for preventing any similar action with regard to the proceedings of this meeting. Mr. Schermerhorn, also of the city of New York, took the same view, and spoke quite earnestly in two of such exclusion, if not now, certainly after dinner, when the Committee would be engaged in organization and the trans-action of private business.

exclusion, if not now, certainly after dinner, when the Committee would be engaged in organization and the transaction of private business.

General Orville Clark, the Washington county veteran, opposed the proposition to exclude. The democratic party carries no dark lanterns: it is always open to public view, its principles are those of hight, liberty and equality; acd if any persons are here awaiting our deliberations, he felt well assured that they folly and coordially sympathized with this National Democratic Committee. The General's speech was a settler, and Benjamin Ray very pleasantly withdrew his resolution.

Speeches were made by Mr. McMahon, General Clark and others, congratulating the hard democracy in view of the prospect of success which they believed awaits them in the State. The election of Fernande Wood to the Mayoralty of the city of New York was halled as a harbinger of speedy victory. The mention of his name drew forth others and applianse.

Mr. Benjamin Ray then made a motion that the State Committee adjourn to the city of New York. The members from the rural districts did not exactly comprehend the motion, whether the present assemblage should leave Congress Hall and proceed directly to the Astor House, or whother the next meeting of the committee should be called for New York. After a little colloquy it seems that the mower of the motion intended that the present meeting should speedily take the Hudson River Railroad cars for the city, when the consideration of the question was postponed until after dinner.

Mr. M'Manox submitted a series of resolutions, which Preparations for the Executions at Charlestown, Va., Dec. 13, 1859.

Extensive preparations are making for the approaching executions. Ninoteen companies of military are now on duty, and guards are stationed at every street coron and cross road. Picket guards patrot the surrounding country, and six more companies are announced as on their way here. The citizens find difficulty in passing from one part of the town to another. They are brought to a halt and marched to the guard house, if unable to give the countersign. to a half and marched to the same and countersign.

Green and Copland will be hung at eleven o'clock in the morning, and Cook and Copple at three in the atornoon. All these men are composed and look calmly on their approaching doom. Their bodies will be given to their friends, if claimed.

The town is quiet and unexcited by rumors. Military discipline is kept up, however, as if it were encompassed by a besieging army. The people look forward with great pleasure to exemption from military surveillance, and when the civil government is restored there will be quite a jubilee. The people would willingly consent that Stevens and Haziett should spend the rest of their days in the Penitentiary, rather than have another military siege at their execution.

FATAL FAIL—CARRESENS OF A HOUSE AGENT.—Coroner Jackman held an inquest on Tuesday at No. 14 Baxter street, upon the body of Patrick Flynn, a native of Ireland, 22 years of age, who lost his life by a fall down a flight of stairs at the above place, on Sunday night. The evidence showed that for the last two years the stairs had no railing, and that at least twenty persons had failen from them. The jury rendered the usual verdict, but appended a censure of George G. Hallock, the agent of the premiees, for his carelessness in allowing the stairs to be in an unsafe condition.

As our readers are aware, the voteran here, General Winfield Scott, arrived in this city on Monday night the distant scene of the late important mission entrusted to his windom by the President of the United States.

Immediately after the arrival of the Commander in Chief he sent off his despatches to Washington. These will no doubt be found to contain very interesting if no important informations the results of the General Commander.

important information—the results of the General's brief but important voyage to the Pacific shores of the republic. His sudden return to New York was matter of surprise throughout the community. Nobody expected that General Scott was so near at home—although our Westerney. and therefore his unexpected presence led to a great deal of astonishment, which, however, soon gave way to joy and gladness. But although his arrival was unexpected by the public, the administration was confidently looking for his return, inasmuch as the President is desirous of holding a conversation with him in regard to the recent

Soon after his arrival General Scott's office was besieged by military officers, public functionaries, civilians and people of every rank and condition, all througing together with the one laudable desire of giving the voteran a hearty and generous greeting on his asfe return. A very large number of citisens called upon him in this way, and among others there was a delegation of merchants, who held a protracted and interesting interview with the old soldier. During their conversation, the outbreak at Harper's Ferry was spoken of, and the merchants asked the General's ominion of the proceedings there. He most he General's opinion of the proceedings there. He most mequivocally condemned the whole affair, and denounced ppropriate terms; and when he was informed that a Union meeting was to be held in this city, to give expression to the true feeling of the North on the subject-the said that he was delighted to hear it, and that he he said that he was delighted to hear it, and that he would certainly be present to form one of the audience on such an auspicious and important occasion.

It is expected that General Scott will set out for Washington in a day or two, and whilst there, we learn from our correspondent, arrangements will be made for introducing into Congress a measure for the augmentation of the army. This is rendered necessary in consequence of the insufficiency of our present regular military force for the protection of the whole extent of our wide and distant Territories. The events which have, from time to time, occurred in Utah, Kansas, Oregon, New Mexico, Brownsville, and other places in far off territory, have had the effect of awakening the administration and the country to the necessity of providing an ample military force, that may, without difficulty or loss of time, be transported to the most distant point where their services may be required.

THEATRE FRANCADS.—The regular performatheatre will be suspended for the present. It appears that the attempt of Mr. Sage to establish a French theatre in New York has met with the fate which overtook these that preceded it, and has failed. The artists will give a performance for their own benefit on next Sat

THE OPERA AT PHILADRIPHIA .-- According to all accounts the success of Miss Adelina Patti at the Philadelphia Academy of Music has been even more marked and dis-tinguished than her triumph in the metropolis. Her second appearance in Lucia, on Saturday evening last, attracted the largest house of the season, and the young prima donna surpassed all her previous efforts. As in New York, she has sung only upon the off nights of the Opera, and attracted larger and more fashionable audiences than on the regu-lar nights. Madame Colson receives the commendations sung there for the first time. The "Sicilian Vespers" has en produced with success, and the season promises to be very profitable. Next week "Don Giovanni" is to be produced, with Miss Patti as Zerlina, which she will sing for the first time. On Wednesday and Thursday of next week Pattl will sing at the Academy here.

JOY AND APPLICTION. - In less than one month after Gen Pierce had received the announcement that he had been chosen President of the United States in 1852, his only child, a promising boy, was killed at the side of his father and mother, by the upsetting of a railroad car. On the third day succeeding the election of Fernando Wood to the Mayoralty of this city—the most joyous event, probably: in the whole course of Mr. Wood's life—his wife was struck by the hand of death, and passed to "that bourne whence no traveller returns." Within less than four whence no traveller returns." Within less than four weeks of the time for the inauguration of Hon. John Letcher as Governor of Virginia, his second son, an interesting youth of ten years of age, is taken from him, he having died on the 5th inst. of lockjaw.

FERLING THE NECESSITY OF THE UNION.—The Union meeting at Hartford will be held this evening. It is said that every officer and employé of the Hartford Manufacturing Company signed the call for the meeting. Of course they did. They know the value of the Union; and, in case of a dissolution or the establishment of non-intercourse, they would feel it.

APPRAY IN THE SIXTH WARD-SHOOTING A SUSPECTED ROWDY BY A FRENCH SEA CAPTAIN.-On Monday morning, shortly after twelve o'clock, Capt. François De la Bar-riere, of the ship Foliere, lying at the foot of Congress street, and two other Freuch captains, Alex. L'hotellier and E. Reblin, were passing through Columbia street, to return on board of their vessels, when near Pacific, an unprovoked assault was made upon them by a gang of rowdies who were standing upon the corner. They assailed them with stones and brickbats. Capt. De la Barrier diew a pistol and fired at the foremost of the gang and shot him in the breast. The Frenchmen then ran, pursued by the gang, and took refuge on board the vessel. The report of the pistol attracted the attention of the officers on that beat, who hastened to the spot and found one of the rowdies, named James Murray, in an apparently dying condition. He was conveyed to the hospital. Upon going to the vessel, the officers ascertained that the Captain and his two friends had secreted themselves in the cabin in foar of the rowdies; but on the appearance of the officers they immediately gave themselves up, the Captain stating that he fired the pistol in self-defence. He said he had previously been molested by a similar gang, and this had induced him to arm himself. He also exhibited a severe wound in the head which he had received by one of the stones thrown. One of the officers states that shortly before the affray he saw about a dozen roughs come out of a neighboring den and cross the street. Soon after the three Frenchmen passed the officer. In a few moments he heard stones rattling on the pavement, and while proceeding to the spot saw the fash and heard the report of the pistol. Coroner Horton yesterday took the ante-mortem examination of the wounded man, who states that he resides at No. 3 Washington street, New York—that he was on his way home and had occasion t, stop on the corner of Pactic and Columbia streets. When the three men passed a hoy near him threw a stone at them, when De B Barriere drew a pistol and advanced towards him (Murray), upon which he, the latter, attempted to close up with him and struck him. De la Barrier then fired. Murray lies at the hospital in a very dangerous condition. The bail entered the breastbone and cannot be found. Captain De la Barriere was committed to await the result, and his friends, Messrs. A. L'hotellier and E. Roblim, were held as witnesses. Others corroborated this testimony, and the jury rendered a verdict of "accidental death."

Witt says they did not do so; that he knows nothing of it; Maroney swears that he did not receive it. As regards the purchase of cotton, Mr. Maroney, before he was employed by the Express Company, had money of his own. This does away with the presumption that the money paid to Agnew was part of the missing $10,000. In regard to the $40,000, the non delivery of that rests only with the proof of Mr. Chase.
